—BART's First Day -- Pickets and Praise—

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Thousands of Peninsula commuters turned out Monday morning to ride the sleek silvery Bay Area Rapid Transit trains to work from Daly City.

Within an hour after BART officials opened the gates at the Daly City station on Knowles Avenue, the upper parking lot — one of four parking lots adjacent to the elevated station — was full.

Fifty-four passengers were on the first train when it pulled into the Montgomery Street station in San Francisco's financial district. The train left Daly City at 5:55 a.m.

Despite overcast skies and gusty winds, a holiday mood prevailed as "kiss and rides" and pedestrians joined motorists on the lower level of the station.

BART had forecast an estimated 36,000 persons would ride the 7.5-mile westbay segment of the line.

It appeared that even this optimistic figure would be broken — at least on the first day of operation.

Lines of persons anxious to ride the trains queued up before the computer-age devices in the open air lobby.

Everyone seemed to be in a happy mood. There was a smooth flow of traffic through the turnstiles and complaints from those waiting in line were rare.

Saturday, BART treated a total of 65,000 persons to free shuttle rides at all eight stations following ribbon-cutting ceremonies, parades, band concerts and the usual speeches from politicians.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, credited with being the sparkplug behind getting BART service started here, met protestors headon in the Mission and Daly City.

Even while exchanging verbal barbs with sign carrying-hecklers, Alioto maintained a grin.

"Nothing can dampen my high spirits today," Alioto told the pickets at the Daly City station.

"BART will bring prosperity to Daly City," he said.

Alioto told a cheering crowd of some 500 persons that BART "pumped some $1.7 billion into the local economy.

"This meant jobs and decent incomes for people so they could go out and buy homes here," he said.

The group of protesters numbered about 50 — far less than the 200-plus expected by Conrad Pavellas, chairman of the Original Daly City Protective Association.

The ODCPA membership has voiced strong opposition to BART, fearing it is responsible for proposed redevelopment in the area.

Pavellas, once a strong supporter of bringing BART to Daly City on an elevated structure, carried the American flag and anti-BART signs Saturday.

In December, 1968, Pavellas, along with eight other residents of the area, sent then-Daly City Mayor Bernard Lycett a signed petition pointing up

Vista Cable Closes Daly City Office

Vista Grande Cable TV Corp. announced Monday the closing of its Daly City office and the firing of all eight employes assigned there.

The notice came in the wake of recent criticism by some employes concerning alleged bad service and shortage of parts and equipment needed to maintain the 34-mile line.

It was only last week that the eight employes joined Local 9, American Communications Association, International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Friday, Vista Grande's office manager, Yemen Chung, was fired.

Chung has since obtained the services of attorney Charles Garry in an effort to regain his job.

Maintenance and office calls are now being routed to the company's Pacifica operations.

However, The Post learned that cable television technicians there are observing picket lines being manned by the fired Daly City employes.

To offset this and maintain the system in both cities, Vista Grande, a subsidiary company of Telecommunications Inc., of Denver, Colo., has brought in non-union personnel from other offices around the Bay Area, it was learned.

Daly City city attorney Albert Polonsky said the cable company is expected to be the subject of a public hearing to show cause why its exclusive franchise with the city should not be revoked.

Last July, Polonsky contacted Vista Grande via letter asking reasons why they were behind schedule in installation of the system throughout the city.

Polonsky said he has been "having talks with TCI" and a report from the city staff to the city council is due by the end of this month.

Although Troy Lee, Vista Grande's district manager, denied the company was having financial troubles when contacted last week, Polonsky said the company "had been discussing financial problems with me."

The city gave Vista Grande a six-month time extension last January.

"We always figure about a six month leeway on these things," Polonsky said.

When the time came and went for completion of the cijlty-wide system without hearing from the company, Polonsky contacted them and received a progress report, he said.

City Manager David Rowe said, meanwhile, construction of the system continues.

Rowe explained construction is being handled by private contractors.

He has been assured by Vista Grande officials that maintenance of the system and handling of complaints can be handled by the Pacifica personnel, he said.

Reason for the closing, according to a company official, was because of the lack of Daly City subscribers. There is an estimated 2,500 subscribers in Daly City, while in Pacifica there are some 7,000, according to Chung.

Cable System Called 'Failure'

The much-vaunted Daly City cablevision system—the so-called "Discade" system — is a dismal failure and will never provide top quality reception for subscribers, an ousted official of Vista Grande Cable TV Corporation charged Friday in an exclusive interview with The Post.

Yemen Chung, fired from his job as manager of Vista Grande's Daly City office effective last Friday, said the complex system, "sold" to city officials some three years ago by another cable company, is continually breaking down "because it just isn't designed for the weather in Daly City."

The moist air corrodes the wiring (ten per cable), causing disruptions throughout the 34-mile citywide network, according to Vista Grande's chief technician, Jim Bissonnette.

Vista Grande Cable TV is a subsidiary of Telecommunications Inc. of Denver, Colorado.

Contacted last week, concerning the allegations of poor supplies, inadequate manpower to service the system and a general cutback in funding of the project that was to have been completed by January of this year, District Manager Troy Lee disputed most of the charges.

Lee said that the system was now being generally overhauled and modified and that the company was experiencing "a personnel problem, rather than equipment problem."

He said "there is plenty of equipment in our warehouse."

The system "is the one we have had to live with" and every effort is being made to rebuild the entire system, Lee said.

There have been problems in the system's amplifiers, however, these are being modified to stand up to weather problems in the Bay Area, he said.

The company admittedly has a personnel problem, Lee said.

He would not elaborate.

However, it was learned that all eight company employees of the Daly City office this week joined Local 9, American Communications Association, International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Earlier these same employees had threatened to walk off the job in the wake of Chung's firing.

Chung has retained attorney Charles Garry to represent him in his dispute with the company.

Chung charged the company with "cheating subscribers" by having them pay for a service they were not getting.

"Under the law these subscribers can get some of their money back," Chung said.

TCI took over the Daly City operation shortly after the death of well-known

Traffic Jam Mars Opening Of Transit

A monumental traffic jam clogged streets around the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station in Daly City during the commute rush hour Monday night, and already city officials are huddling over ways and means to alleviate the problem.

The unexpected crush of motorists came at 5 p.m. at the intersection of Junipero Serra Boulevard and Knowles Avenue as cars began leaving the BART station parking lot.

Heavy rains and high winds added to hazards as local police attempted to untangle the mess. It lasted until about 7 p.m.

From early morning—the first day of Daly City to downtown San Francisco BART service—it was apparent parking lots at the station would be overtaxed.

Capacity of the four varied-level lots is only 850 vehicles.

BART officials estimated some 25,000 persons rode the westbay segment of the 75-mile system yesterday, parking some 1,100 cars in the lots and on side streets around the station when the lots filled.

There was some confusion inside the parking lots as drivers cruised around looking for an open space. Some gave up and parked on nearby side streets, taking up spaces normally used by residents.

But yesterday morning confusion was minor as compared to the 5 p.m. homeward bound flood of motorists, all apparently trying to leave the BART station area at once.

City Engineer David Macabee and police said they believe traffic signals in the area should be adjusted to cope with the volume of traffic heading away from the station. They also explained that not enough BART riders understand local traffic patterns.

For example, St. Charles Way, which is a north exit from the station area, turns back and allows motorists to gain access to the Junipero Serra freeway.

Even with these minor traffic problems two San Francisco television reporters decided to give the BART train the ultimate test—car versus commuter.

The commuter, Linda Shen, and the motorist, Al Dale, both of KPIX Channel 5 news, took off their separate ways from the Montgomery St. station. Linda waited at the Daly City terminus for almost ten minutes before Dale arrived, complaining of slippery roads, heavy traffic and innumerable accidents on the freeway.

All things considered, BART's first day in the westbay went smoothly, despite the breakdown of two seven-car trains early in the day.

Passengers were transferred quickly to standby trains and resumed their ride.

Most trains left and arrived at their destination on time. It took an average of 13 minutes for a rider to arrive at Montgomery Street from Daly City.

There was some bewilderment at the ticket and change machines in the lobby of the Daly City station, but BART attendants expected this and were on hand to assist people.

Turnstiles began spilling out money as fast as riders could deposit it at one point during the day.

A rider may plunk 30 cents in coin directly into a turnstile and be admitted to the platform.

Riding BART Can Be Fun; Here's How

Riding the Bay Area Rapid Transit trains can be fun.

Getting on one, unless you know and understand the system, can be frustrating.

Here's how it's done:

A passenger enters the station and, if he has the change, merely drops the money into the "ticket" machine (30 cents for rides between Daly City, Balboa and Glen Park); 35 cents for downtown stations.

It might be wise and time saving to buy a round trip ticket.

If you do not have the change go to the "money changing" machine nearby which takes dollars, quarters, dimes or nickels.

A person may purchase a ticket card up to $20 in value. Each time he or she passes through the ticket gate the device automatically deducts the fare and notes the balance left.

After the ticket is purchased the rider enters the turnstile, sticks his ticket in one end, walks through and the ticket pops out the other side.

At the completion of the ride the same system is used — unless you owe BART some money.

For example if you bought a 30 cent ticket and the ride is for 35 cents the turnstile will not let you out of the station. If you try to go up, over or under the turnstile a station attendant will be watching from an enclosed glass booth next to the exit.

The only way to leave the station in this case is to return to the "addiace" machine.

Stick the ticket in and it will flash how much you owe — in this case five cents. Drop in a nickel and then take your ticket back to the turnstile.

There are elevators for the handicapped and toilets. The elevators run continually (but the escalators are faster).

If you have to use the restrooms you must ask the attendant and he pushes a button.

BART officials ask persons to board trains quickly. The doors only stay open at on-line stations for 20 seconds. Daly City is the exception where trains are expected to stand by longer.

For questions concerning the system call 788-BART and you will be put in contact with someone who speaks your language—whether it be Chinese, Spanish or English.

Meanwhile, BART warns that the third rail on the track bed is "hot" and will kill instantly. If you drop anything onto the tracks call

Trustees to Discuss Closing 'Little Jeff'

The Jefferson Elementary School District trustees are expected to discuss the closing of "Little Jeff" school in the eastern section of Daly City at its regular meeting tonight.

Coupled with this closure, Supt. Keith Breon will ask the school board to consider the sale of Thornton School to the Jefferson Union High School District and the use of Little Jeff for administration and storage purposes.

Breon cited several reasons as justification for the shift:

First, the district's student population has been on the decline for the past several years. Projections indicate this trend will continue in the foreseeable future.

Secondly, Jefferson Elementary School (Little Jeff) does not meet standards spelled out in the Field Act concerning earthquake-proofing of schools.

As a warehouse or administration building — a building that does not house children — these standards do not have to be met, Breon explained.

He said the JUHSD has made overtures concerning purchase of the Thjornton School site in the past for use as a high school.

Most of Little Jeff's students are now "walkins." That is, they come from the immediate neighborhood around the school and walk to class.

In all, there are slightly more than 200 children attending Little Jeff.

About half of the school's enrollment is bussed in from other areas.

What would happen, according to Breon, is that children now attending the school would be shifted to other schools.

Breon emphasized this did not mean additional busing.

"Actually, it might mean less busing and the assignment of children closer to their homes," he said.

The superintendent, pinching pennies since he took over the district's top job from ousted Supt. Frank Greenwood earlier this year, said his recommendations, if adopted, could result in savings of from $50,000 to $75,000 immediately.

Also on tonight's agenda is the initial discussion concerning closing of the Fernando Rivera Intermediate School and the transferring of its pupils to other schools, including Christopher Columbus.

Election Probe Asked

Pacifica Mayor Aubrey Lumley has asked City Atty. John Sherman to request the district attorney's office to investigate a possible violation of the Election Code.

The possible violation, Lumley charged, involved one of the signatures on an argument against Measure F in an election leaflet distributed to each voter in Pacifica. Measure F is a $1,850,000 bond issue to buy the Rockaway Highlands for parks and open space.

He charged that the President of the Pacifica Highlands Residents' Association, Virginia Jaeger, had signed the argument without a vote of its members or Board of Directors. It was not until last Sunday night that the board met to authorize the signature, he noted.

Mrs. Jaeger said Oct. 30 the councilmen had placed the bond issue on the ballot just a few days before the deadline. She said the council acted on Sept. 10.

On Sept. 11, leaders of the United Citizens of Pacific contacted chairmen of the various improvement associations.

On Sept. 12, they wrote the ballot arguments.

Mrs. Jaeger said she only had time before the Sept. 13 deadline to try to phone members of her board since there was no time to call a meeting. She was able to find only one board member, but did talk to six members of the association, all of whom she said agreed to the written argument.

In addition, she said, every previously signed the petition against the Rockaway Highlands rezoning.

Subsequently, the city selected the arguments and they were printed in a legal advertisement in a local newspaper — with no objections from anyone, she said.

member of the board had

Then, Oct. 26, she said she received a telephone call from Lumley asking if the board had voted on the issue. As a result of the call, she called an emergency board meeting on Oct. 28, and all attended except two.

JESD Applies For Funds to Establish Ethnic Programs

The Jefferson Elementary School District, faced with a significant increase in its minority student enrollment, is expected to apply for federal funding of a new bilingual, bi-cultural program for the district.

Up to $1 million could be made available for such a program in the coming school year, according to Supt. Keith Breon.

In a special meeting of the school Board Oct. 31, Breon asked that initial steps — the naming of 10 local groups from a cross-section of the community — be taken to apply for funds under the U.S. government's Emergency School Aid Act.

What the program would do is familiarize students, parents and teachers with problems encountered by various ethnic groups.

It would not provide any funds for busing children from one school to another for the purpose of achieving racial balance, Breon emphasized.

Dr. William Fowler, Breon's administrative aide in locating such funds, discovered the possibility of the district applying for the monies last month.

Oct. 30, some 30 persons from an assortment of Daly City organizations, including the NAACP, P-TA, Affirmative Action Committee, Guadalupe Health Clinic, Latin Club, Filipino-American Association, Broadmoor Property Owners' Association, Latin Heritage and two sisters from the Holy Angels and Our Lady of Perpetual Help parishes, attended an informal meeting with district staff and trustees to hammer out a basic plan for getting the program under way.

From the 10 local groups, representatives will be named to a citizens' committee. This committee will work with teachers and administrators to draft a final plan for implementation of the program. It will then be submitted for approval to the federal government for actual funding.

On Breon's recommendations the school board last Wednesday approved the hiring of Dr. Theodore W. Parsons, president of Professional Development Systems, to assist in drafting the plan and application for funding.

He will be paid $2,000, it was understood.

Breon pointed out there were no guarantees the district would get the funds. However, the fact that the district has undergone dramatic shifts in ethnic makeup in recent years appears to qualify it for these funds, he said.

The superintendent noted that the city's black population "has stabilized," while Spanish surname and Asian students are increasing.

In the 1972-73 school year there was a white population of 66 per cent, Breon explained. This figure dropped to 58 per cent in the 1973-74 school year, he said.

Funds also would be made available, under the act, to initiate a Spanish language class for teachers, with pay. It also would fund hiring of teacher aides, allowing instruction of smaller groups of children.

There are now 100 non-English speaking students attending a special tutorial program in the district.

Some parents voiced strong concern at the Oct. 30 meeting that teachers do not relate with their students because of a lack of understanding of their backgrounds and inability to speak the language.

Breon said he believes the program will ease tensions in the district.

"This program also will help parents understand their children's problems," Breon said.

Breon agreed with those parents who complained the district had a disproportionate number of minority teachers.

While the district shows a 42 per cent minority student population there is only a 13 per cent makeup of minority staff members.

"As teachers leave the district we should exert every effort to locate and hire qualified minority teachers," Breon said.

The program would be an on-going project even if funds were cut off in two or three years, Breon predicted.

Delaying on Ford Would Not Be Wise

The play within a play seems to be receiving insufficient attention, and certainly not enough direct action.

The story line of the subplot is strong enough. Agnew, long and strong on law and order succumbs, of all things, to law and order. He disappears proclaiming innocence and paying a $10,000 fine.

Richardson and the President receive some criticism for not requiring a jail or prison term as part of the arrangement under which Agnew left public life. In terms of the pure application of even handed justice as to Agnew, the deal could be questioned. But much more was involved. Agnew had to be removed from office, and from the perspective of national good, this had to be one of the best deals ever made.

For Agnew could have held, turned, and twisted. In one appearance before the Republican ladies he displayed the power of rhetoric. He could have stirred the country and worried on in the job for three more years, all the while holding the national interest in hostage.

Then comes Jerry Ford, a career congressman of solid stature. His designation dimmed the dreams of many more charismatic men. Suddenly Ford, whose political stature appeared inconsequential to those playing the '76 game came closer to stage center.

Ford, a sound, stable man suddenly was exposed to the acid forces of criticism. Conservatives were seething, liberal Republicans disappointed. It was expedient for all leader types to paint him as dull and drab. Certainly the Rockefellers, Connallys, Reagans, Percys, and others among Republicans had much to lose if Ford was accorded star billing. Democrats visioned a "new man in town" who was clear of Watergate, and who might just be trouble in '76. So they too colored him gray. To limit such attack Ford has stated that he will not run in '76.

Meanwhile Jerry Ford has had to sit and wait. Wait for the wheels of the Senate and House to grind slowly. Wait out the temptation of some Democrats to delay action in his appointment in hope that Carl Albert might become president. The imperatives of the waiting game have compounded the unfairness, and have tended to make Ford appear all the more dull — a posture he can leave safely only after Congress has finished with him.

Last week Ford made an extraordinary request — that all papers, records, conversations, yes, even tapes, that concern him and his affairs be made public. He publicly waived all claims of confidentiality, an action that should under ordinary circumstances, speed his approval along.

Whether this decent act, or any other move on his part can hurry Congress is doubtful. For that body, which has slept through years of American history now seeks to act with excruciating care. Where Agnew and Eagleton were selected with a moment's thought, Ford may be the object of months of agonizing scrutiny. The Congress, which passed the Southeast Asian Resolution after mere hours of hearings may in full pomp and pompousness examine Gerald Ford into early spring of next year.

The Congress is, of course, suitably impressed that it is engaged in the first implementation of Section 2 of the Twenty-Fifth Amendment. It provides: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

As part of the federal Constitution, this clause controls the flow of life blood of the Republic. Under the present circumstances there is no question that the full background of Ford should be reviewed. But with all of the powers of both houses, and the wits of 534 (100 Senators, plus 434 Congressmen) of America's leading political minds, it seems that months are hardly required.

In fact, it is in the national interest that Jerry Ford be put up or down on vote in the reasonably near future, and that the nation be relieved of the visible risks involved in foolish, unkind, and even unpatriotic delay. When that vote does come, it can be predicted that he will pass the test well, and the sooner this happens the better.

Arrest in S.S.F. Market Holdup

South San Francisco police have arrested James Arthur Dolan, 47, of 611 Larch Ave., in connection with the robbery of Paradise Valley Market, 249 Hillside Blvd., on Oct. 29.

Dolan was arrested in Colma by police who traced his vehicle while following up on the investigation of the robbery.

During the robbery, a man holding a small revolver escorted manager Louis Lutticken and owner Ignatius Passantino to the front of the store where he was given the contents of a safe.

Fish Derby Planned For Dedication

Events for Pacifica's Pier Dedication Day, Nov. 10 — now just a few days away — continued to mount last week.

Regional interest was centered on Pacifica's Fishing Derby, expected to be the first of an annual event.

Other events scheduled include a parade, dedication ceremonies, tours through the new sewer plant — all climaxing with the annual City Awards Dinner-Dance at the Eureka Square Shopping Center.

The fishing derby will be from 1-4 p.m., with signups beginning at 12:30 p.m. on the pier.

First and second place trophies will be awarded in five age divisions: Junior, 6-9 years; Junior Teen, 10-13 years; Teen, 14-19 years; Adult, 20-59 years, and Senior, 60 and older.

Trophies are being donated by St. Elmo DeDeaux of the Pacifica Sports Center. Judging will be based on weight of fish caught — not the length. Contestants must bring their own equipment.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Tom Sawyer expects about 30 entries in the parade. Although deadline for the parade entry was Monday, Sawyer said that he will accept post-parade entries.

In the parade will be both Oceana and Terra Nova High School bands, 4-H horsemen, Bill Messer's 1928 Stutz Bearcat, a 1914 C-Cab Van; and numerous Boy Scout, Girl Scout and other youth group marching entries. Inquiries have come in from throughout the county from horsemen's groups and drill teams.

The parade will start at 10 a.m. and is expected to traverse the length of west Sharp Park, along a picturesque route overlooking the surf.

Entry forms are available at the chamber office or by phoning 355-4122.

Congressman Leo Ryan will speak at dedication ceremonies, expected to be attended by numerous state and local officials.

A reception in the City Council's new chambers on the second floor of the sewer plant will be hosted by the Sharp Park Improvement Council. Local merchants in addition are donating food for the occasion.

The awards dinner will be climaxed by announcement of the Outstanding City Employe of the Year. The dinner is free to city employes, commissioners and board members, and $3 for the public. The dinner will be followed by dancing. Tickets to the affair are available in the city manager's office.

Meanwhile, City Manager Dave Thompson disclosed that the sewer plant will not be fully completed at its dedication, although it is already in operation.

The contractor's latest completion date is Nov. 16. The pier is expected to be completed. Lights are being installed this week. The snack shop on the pier is being completed.

The City Council Monday awarded the lease of the snack shop to DeDeaux for $5400, payable at the rate of $150 a month. Although bid proposals were given to 18 firms, DeDeaux was the only one to submit a bid.

The Council also raised the city's budget for the dedication from $500 to $1500.

Mayor Aubrey Lumley displayed samples of a souvenir coaster, showing a picture of the new facility on sale for a dollar apiece.

Without Volunteers Pacifica Recycling Center Will Close

A last minute appeal may yet save what is believed to be the Bay Area's last purely voluntary recycling center.

Pacifica's Ecology Action board had decided to close by Jan. 1 unless some new volunteers offered to help. Several new persons as a result of the proposed closing have volunteered, according to Judy Leimer, vice president and publicity chairman of the group.

"We still need more volunteers who are willing to do their part to improve their environment," she declared.

The center is open Tuesdays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon. It takes newspapers, cardboard, glass, tin and aluminum cans. If the newspapers are not bundled, glass not separated into clear and colored and cans not sorted and flattened, then volunteers must go to work to prepare the material for recycling.

Since its opening three and a half years ago, the center has been located on San Pedro Road, just off of the Coast Highway, near the southern boundary of Pacifica.

The center got its start on the first "Earth Day," held in April, 1970. Its founders were Mary McClure — still its president — and two other women who have moved out of town.

"We were trying to get actively involved," Mrs. Keimer recalls, "and recycling seemed to be the thing to do."

After numerous battles with the city, the center opened. However, as the years rolled on, some of the initial enthusiasm waned and volunteers enrolled in other activities.

There are captains assigned to the center each Saturday and each Tuesday.

A few days in advance, the captains begin phoning the list of volunteers. Sometimes, a list of 20 may produce only two "definites."

"It's becoming frustrating," Mrs. Leimer reports.

"On a couple of occasions, the captain was the only one who showed up."

Such occasions have been busy ones, since some material dropped off for recycling is not sorted at all.

The center has been making a little money from the pure aluminum it receives. Since its own expenses are almost nil, the center has been donating to a wide range of projects to improve Pacifica's environment.

They bought a power auger for the City Park Department to use for tree planting. The center has aided the Laguna Salada Outdoor Education Program, and has donated to the Pacifica Boys' Club.

The center sells its aluminum cans to Coors Beer and its glass to Owens Illinois Co. in the East Bay. The sale however only pays for the expenses of hauling and crushing.

Tin cans are given to M&T Chemical Co. in South San Francisco, for recycling, but a problem is posed by bimetal cans — pop-top cans — composed of tin, with aluminum tops. The metals must be separated so such cans cannot be recycled.

Other material is picked up by Sunset Scavenger Co. of San Francisco, including cardboard and paper, whose demand has risen recently because of Japanese needs.

Mrs. Leimer urged that local persons with a commitment to improving the environment, including teenagers, couples, men and women, get in touch with her at 359-3286.

"We need new blood," she declared. "Not only do we need help in operating the center, but we need help in running our organization."

Each of the present officers has been in their current posts for several years, she said.

"It would be nice to have someone else run things for a while."

THE WESTLAKE Catholic Men's Club held their annual Father and Son Night Nov. 6, in the parish hall at 8 p.m. Fathers and Sons were entertained by the popular "Orsini & Crystal," Bay Area magicians, pictured above. Following the performance refreshments were served. An invitation was extended to all fathers and sons of the parish.

Dean To Review 'Winds of War'

James Wyatt, dean of students, Skyline College, will review Pulitzer prize-winning author Herman Wouk's massive novel "The Winds of War" for The Friends of the Daly City Library Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Coral Room of the Westlake Branch Library, 275 Southgate Ave.

The historical novel, considered by many critics to be Wouk's best work since "The Caine Mutiny," recreates the period 1939-41 when the nations of the world were drawn into World War II.

Wouk was a nval officer during this war and has been a professor of English at Yeshiva University in New York. Presently he resides in Washington, D.C. His work has been translated into all the main European and several Oriental languages.

Among the fiction, nonfiction and drama which have been published since his first novel, "Aurora Dawn," a Book-of-the-Month Club selection, was published in 1947, have been "The City Boy," "The Caine Mutiny," "Marjorie Morningstar," "Youngblood Hawke," "Don't Stop the Carnival" and "This is My God."

Mrs. H. C. Kincaid, book review chairman, has arranged this evening program so that business and professional men and women may attend. It is presented as a community service and the public is invited admission free.

Hostess for the evening will be Hospitality chairman Elvera Sunnell, assisted by Mmes. Lloyd Wilson and Klaus Tschorsnig.

CHARLES BRIGHT

Navy Chief Machinery Repairman Charles W. Bright, son of Mrs. Virgie Bright of 979 Sandra Court, South San Francisco, was deployed to the Western Pacific on board the attack aircraft carrier, USS Oriskany.

Annual 'Day At the Races' For Pacificans

Pacifica's annual "Day at the Races" at Bay Meadows will be Nov. 14.

Milt Holmes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event, said, "So much of Pacifica's history is related to November that we thought it only fitting for the annual 'Pacifica Day at the Races' to be scheduled during the coming month."

The date, Nov. 14, was selected to fill out a whole month of community events that include the annual Portola Hike, the City's anniversary, and the dedication of the new fishing pier.

According to Holmes, those who attend the races will be greeted by Miss Pacifica, Teri Tenney, receive a free program and be escorted to the exclusive Turf Club for a buffet luncheon.

Pacifica Chapter

Le Leche League Starts New Series

MRS. BONNIE BAUER, left, and Mrs. Suzette Pruit, will co-lead Pacifica's La Leche League as the chapter begins a new series of discussions Nov. 8. Meetings, held on the second Thursday of each month in members' homes at 8 p.m., are open to all women interested in learning about breastfeeding.

Pacifica's La Leche League will start a new series of discussions on breastfeeding, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. at 1142 Mason Drive.

Mrs. Bonnie Bauer, new to Pacifica since June but an established leader in LLL for five years, will lead the discussion on "The Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby."

Mrs. Suzette Pruit, who has led the Pacifica chapter to the past five years, will for the past five years, will moves to New Mexico this winter.

Mrs. Pruit was the first official leader of the Pacifica chapter, though a group of nursing mothers met under the leadership of Mrs. Mimi Haggerty before La Leche League International, headquartered in Franklin Park, Ill., approved the Pacifica chapter as one of the now 1400 international chapters. She had attended LLL meetings in San Francisco for two years before applying for leadership in Pacifica.

The outgoing leader has two children, David, 8, and Becky, 6, who were both breastfed, a fact she credits to the help and encouragement of LLL. The information available in books and pamphlets through the League and the encouragement of other nursing mothers helped Mrs. Pruit over the discouraging moments, she felt, and after her happy experience, she was eager to help others know the same success.

The incoming leader had few problems in breastfeeding her five children, Ann, almost 11; Sean, 9, Greg, 8; Tony, almost 6, and Miriam, 4, but was so enthusiastic over the purpose of LLL, informing and encouraging mothers who want to nurse, that she started attending meetings in Gig Harbor, Wash. She was approved for leadership in July, 1968. She started a chapter in Bremerton, Wash.

Mrs. Bauer's husband, Dan, is a structural engineer in the Western division of the U.S. Naval facilities in San Bruno. Mrs. Pruit's husband, Bob, has been a mechanic for United Air Lines for 13 years.

Both women had careers before becoming wives and mothers. Mrs. Bauer, who has a B.S. in physics from Seattle University, taught physics there. Mrs. Pruit, who has a B.A. in English from Michigan State University, has worked in journalism and business.

Three Youths Hurt On Canyon Parkway

Within 24 hours after an accident involving five persons on Guadalupe Canyon Parkway, a second accident, in almost the same spot, injured three youths.

A fourth youth riding in the car that plunged over a 200-foot cliff managed to climb back to the highway and hitch a ride.

Police still do not know the identity of the "missing" boy or whether he was injured in the crash that demolished the small car.

The car, driven by Michael Kinder, 18, of 444 89th St., Daly City, was traveling east toward Brisbane when it went over the steep cliff. A grove of eucalyptus trees halfway down the cliff stopped the car, police said.

Firemen were called to free passenger Terrence Healy, 18, of 856 Antoinette Lane, South San Francisco. Healy was transferred to Kaiser Hospital for treatment of injuries after examination of Mary's Help Hospital.

Kinder and a third passenger, Wayne Ekstine, 19, of 516 87th St., Colma, escaped serious injury.

Oct. 29 two cars collided headon, injuring five persons, including thee small children.

Realtor George Lagomarsino, driver of one car, was reported in stable condition today at Peninsula Hospital.

John Bonfiglio, 44, of 273 Templeton St., Daly City, and his three children were also reported in stable condition at Peninsula Hospital.

Brisbane Hero Saves a Life, Averts Disaster

A Brisbane man was credited Nov. 2 with saving the life of an elderly trailer home resident in that bayside city and single-handedly averting what could have been a major disaster.

Police and fire officials agreed that the efforts of Beliczar Sperow, 40, of 5 Old Country Road saved the life of William Swan, 80, a retired soldier.

Sperow braved flames and smoke to enter the trailer and carry the disabled Swan to safety.

He then grabbed a small garden hose and began playing water on two large butane tanks which threatened to explode at any time, witnesses said.

When the heat became too intense, Sperow inched his way toward the tanks on his stomach in order to put more water on the fuel tanks.

Sperow continued to keep the containers cool until firemen arrived, according to reports.

Swan was taken to Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio, suffering from smoke inhalation. Sperow somehow managed to escape injury, except for singed hair, police said.

Fire investigators blamed a defective gas line for the fire.

About 8:30 p.m., Sperow said he heard cries for help coming from Swan's trailer home nearby. When he looked out he saw the Swan trailer almost completely engulfed in flames.

Shot Hits S.S.F. Man

There's no known connection, but Richard Michael Montosa may think twice before dumping a sack of garbage at Bayhill in San Bruno.

He reportedly did it Oct. 28, and shortly afterward was shot in the leg, with an apparent 22-caliber bullet, police said.

According to authorities, Montosa, who was treated for a bullet wound in the left thigh at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, was at the San Bruno shopping center construction site shortly after 4 p.m.

Police said they learned that Montosa, a 20-year-old soldier who lives at 320 B St., South San Francisco, had been shot while walking to his vehicle after dropping a sack of garbage.

Officials said they have no leads, nor apparent motives for the shooting.

San Francisco Line Story--A BART History

Though only 8.3 miles in along Market Street total length, building the San Francisco segment of the Bay Area Rapid Transit line was considered by engineers to be one of the most challenging construction projects in history, the most difficult part being the sections of downtown San Francisco subway.

As early as 1963 soil tests were being made beneath Market Street by drilling five inch bores at depths of 100-200 feet. These tests would be needed to determine soil permeability, particle size, strength and settlement behavior, information that was vital to solving the complex engineering problems that lay ahead.

Then on a warm July day in 1967, 125 San Francisco school children wielding gold spraved shovels broke the first ground for the line.

For the next few years pedestrians along Market would have to jostle across the thoroughfare on narrow plank walkways, and street-car lenging construction projects would have to inch their way through a forest of detour signs. The most familiar sound would be the snort of compressors, the staccato racket of air hammers and the steady slam-slam of pile drivers.

But even the haphazard scene on the surface gave no clue to the activity underneath.

There, engineers and contractors wrestled with the information that was vital to solving host of problems they had anticipated during the planning years and some they had not anticipated.

Found a maze of utilities, criss-crossing at crazy angles in a layer 10 feet deep. During the last 100 years, more than 200 utility companies "planted" facilities of one kind or another under Market Street. Many had been abandoned and did not even show on the available plans. Threading through them, however, were live lines and conduits of all sizes and shapes — sewer, high pressure water, fire alarm lines, high voltage power lines, gas, and steam all of which were an ever present danger.

They would have to be moved or suspended in place while the workmen excavated around them and then built new concrete conduits to house them. It was important that each one be kept intact so that power to the surrounding office buildings and stores would not be interrupted.

In constructing the mammoth subway stations a technique was used known as cut and cover.

The work crews would first break away the pavement, excavate enough to give them working room and then deck over the work area with giant timbers. This allowed them to continue to dig to the desired depth and complete the construction while traffic continued to roll overhead.

The porous sands, saturated with water, created great hydrostatic pressures. Thrusting against too light a station structure, the pressure could literally push it out of shape.

To offset these forces the engineers specified heavy concrete bases — seven feet thick in some cases and steel crossbeams up to six feet deep. The water posed another problem. It had to be kept in place around the existing structures and out of the excavation. Otherwise it could cause widespread settlement and adversely affect adjacent property owners.

One method was use of the so-called "slurry wall," a technique which really came into its own on the BART project.

With this method, the contractor excavated a trench all around the perimeter of the proposed station site. As he excavated — perhaps to 100 feet deep — he kept the trench full of heavy Bentonite slurry.

The slurry formed a barrier which kept water from seeping out of the adjacent area. The contractor then filled the trench with concrete, piping it down to the bottom of the ditch and simultaneously displacing the slurry until the trench had become a solid concrete wall. Early on, engineers had planned that his wall would in fact become the permanent wall of the station, thereby saving time and additional expense. With that perimeter wall in place, the construction men could excavate safely to full depth.

The BART stations stretch for 700 feet, 800 feet if you include the substations; the length of two average city blocks and are 100 feet in width. The Market Street stations are 75 feet deep, approximately the size of a five-story building, to house three separate levels.

The first level is the station concourse or mezzanine, the second level is designed to serve the San Francisco Municipal streetcars and the third level the BART trains.

Tunnelling between stations was an entirely different operation. BART engineers designed the subway tunnels under San Francisco, Berkeley, and Oakland to be awarded in small enough sections to attract as much competitive bidding as possible.

The result was that tunnelling was conducted at 36 different headings, one of the greatest concentrations of tunnelling work in construction history. Under Market Street, the subway lines are two abreast and two deep.

Several methods of tunnelling were used, depending on individual situations, but the most extensive tunnelling for soft ground excavation was achieved by the giant mechanical moles. These were machines with revolving cutters which bored their way through the earth at an average rate of 35 feet a day at a cost of $2,142 per foot.

The spoils were carried away on a conveyor belt, hoisted to the surface and trucked away. Immediately following the digging process, the segments of heavy steel tunnel liners were set in place by hydraulically operated arms. Liners for the 17½ foot diameter tunnels were designed for installation in six segments, each weighing about 6,000 pounds. 27,600 were used overall.

The most challenging section of the tunnelling project was the approach to the Trans-Bay Tube where the BART line leaves the Embarcadero Station, which is still under construction, and dips under the Ferry Building to connect with the tube 400 feet offshore.

Here, the combined pressure of 80 feet of water and bay mud made it necessary for the tunnelers to work under 36 pounds per square inch of compressed air pressure.

It was slow going.

For every hour of actual work, the men had to spend three hours in the compression chamber and three more hours in decompression to avoid getting the bends.

During this construction period the work crews encountered nearly 900 heavy timbers, — pilings from an ancient wharf and the remains of three ships, which according to harbor records, had burned and sunk to become imbedded 20 feet deep in the mud over the passing years.

"Looking at Camps" is the name of the program currently under way as a part of the Girl Scout leader orientation for summer camping.

The program calls for a monthly opportunity for leaders to look over prospective camp sites prior to the time she arrives in the field with a troop of girls in tow.

This past month Scout leaders from all over this section of the state arrived to survey the Butano Girl Scout camp here, in San Mateo County, Nov. 13, the "look and see trip" will be to Mountain Mill House above Calistoga and in December scouters will be visiting Bothin Youth Center in Marin County.

In our area Mrs. David Dale is the camp coordinator. Mrs. Dale may be reached by calling 992-3986 and she will be happy to provide troop leaders with information about the "Looking at Camps" opportunities which are up coming.

THERE ARE STILL a few seats left on that chartered bus that will be taking members of the Pacifica Fifty Plus Club and their well-wishers on a fabulous trek to a Scotch New Year's "Hogmanay."

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, president and enthusiastic leader of the Coastside senior's group, reports that the plans call for a Dec. 27 departure for the Hotel Empress in Victoria where the tour members will see how the New Year is welcomed by Scotsmen who honor age-old traditions.

The bus trip will begin at dawn Dec. 27 and the group will arrive in Victoria, Dec. 29, with time allowed for everyone to rest up before New Year's Eve and the Hogmanay Festival.

(For those as confused as I about Hogmanay Festivals, Mrs. Calhan explained that the celebration begins with a "Grand March" and proceeds to a "Circassian Circle," a special dance to celebrate the season. The gala continues with eighsome reels, St. Bernard's waltzes and something contribute their talents to the program. There will be prizes known as a "Gay Gordon." Pipers and Highland dances contribute their talents to theprogram. There will be prizes for best Scottish costumes and for lightfooted dancers and food and beverages to keep everyone lively and happy.)

Following the welcoming of the New Year the seniors will remain in Victoria to visit the classic car museum, the Royal London Wax Museum and the Prince Albert Miniature World. Jan. 2, the tour will start home, and everyone is expected to be unpacking suitcases on the evening of Jan. 4.

Mrs. Calhan stressed that persons do not have to be members of the Fifty Plus Club to join in the fun. For additional information or to reserve your ticket call Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg, 355-2184, or Mrs. Calhan, 564-5198.

Carmel is the honeymoon destination of Michael Joseph Winkler and his bride, the former Rebecca Candelaria Garcia, who exchanged vows Saturday at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church.

The 10 o'clock rites were conducted by the Rev. Angelo Re, and followed by a reception at the Chief Petty Officers Club on Treasure Island.

Becky is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Garcia of San Bruno. When she walked to the altar with her father, she was dressed in a long white gown with sheer sleeves, ruffled lace cuffs, and a high neckline also detailed with ruffles. Ruffles also accented her V-shaped bodice and edged the bottom of her dress.

The bride completed her look with a long veil secured by a skull cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, Bristol fairy and greenery.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. John Gleb of San Diego. She wore a floral print dress with a lavender lining and matching ribbon in her hair, and carried a bouquet of pink orchids, lavender carnations and Bristol fairy.

Similar dresses with baby blue linings and hair ribbons were chosen by bridesmaids Suzanne Carlos of San Bruno, Jackie James of Millbrae, Sandy Esola of San Francisco Cindy Winkler of South San Francisco, sister of the bridegroom, and Sue Winkler of Sacramento, the bridegroom's cousin. They carried pink orchids, baby blue carnations and Bristol fairy.

Mike asked David Baldisserri of Pacifica to be his best man. Ushering duties were shared by Henry Garcia of San Bruno, the bride's brother, Tom Wall and Marty Day, also of South City, Dennis Arata of Foster City and Dennis Bohm of San Francisco.

The new matron was educated at Capuchino High School, the College of San Mateo and California State University at San Francisco. She is also the sister of John and Michael Garcia.

'Let's Stop Recycling Child Abuse'

By MICHELLE CARTER

A first step in the attempt to "stop recycling child abuse" was taken Friday when professionals in related fields and interested citizens gathered at the Hall of Flowers at the San Mateo County Fairgrounds for an all-day seminar.

The program aimed at laying the groundwork for a unified, county-wide approach to dealing with the problem of the battered child in San Mateo county.

Serving as moderator for the program was Dr. Harvey S. Kaplan, chief of pediatrics at Chope Community Hospital and chairman of the task force committee on child abuse which was established by the Forum for Children's and Adolescent Services of the county Health and Welfare Department.

A definition of the child abuse problem and a discussion of one approach to preventing and treating it was provided by Dr. Peter Sheaff, a pediatrician and trauma consultant at the Children's Trauma Center of Children's Hospital and Medical Center in Oakland.

He discussed the abused child in terms of "any child whose health and welfare is endangered by assault or lack of care."

"The battered child is at one end of the spectrum. In the middle is the gray zone of accident prone children whose parents have plausible explanations for their injuries. At the other end are the passively rejected children who are scapegoats for the family," Dr. Sheaff explained.

He blamed reluctance to report cases of child abuse for the lack of knowledge about the true dimensions of the problem, but he quoted experts in the field who say that 25 per cent of all fractures occurring in children under the age of two are usually cases of child abuse, and likewise in ten per cent of all trauma to children under three.

Dr. Sheaff noted that all parents abuse their children in one way or another from time to time, but he said seriously abusive parents can be categorized to some degree. Four times as many women abuse their children as men; adopted parents more than natural parents; parents of premature babies more than parents of full-term infants, and most significantly of all, parents who were abused themselves more often than parents who themselves were raised by loving parents.

DR. HARVEY KAPLAN

(This is where the recycling occurs. Each set of abusive parents is raising children who will very likely grow up to be abusive parents themselves. If abusive parents can be successfully rehabilitated, their children will have a better chance of being normal parents themselves some day.)

Of all abusive parents, he said, only 10 per cent are psychotic; the rest "are just like you and me" except that they have a problem in "mothering."

"These parents have the conviction that children exist to satisfy parental needs, and they tend to disregard the needs of their children," Dr. Sheaff said.

"When abuse is present, mothering is lacking. About one mother in five doesn't know how to mother. We must learn to recognize the potential of the biological mother who doesn't know how to mother."

By mothering, Dr. Shaaff means the ability of parents to cuddle and handle their child with warmth and tenderness. For parents who lack the quality, handling and caring for their child is a purely mechanical act, according to Dr. Sheaff.

He believes that the act of child abuse is the result of several factors including unloved parents incapable of mothering, a child who often is hyperactive, precocious or retarded (all requiring added attention) and a crisis situation which could be anything from an impending divorce to running out of bread at home.

Dr. Sheaff explained how the team at the Children's Trauma Clinic applies skilled intervention while the child is hospitalized to stop the cycle of child abuse. Often, in this case, the child is removed from the home while the parents receive professional counseling and therapy. This usually takes from three to six months or until the trauma team feels there is no further danger to the child in the home.

Dr. Sheaff is emphatic on the subject of punishment for child abusers.

"To send someone (who is not psychotic) to prison for abusing his child is wrong. Parents don't want to hurt their child, and if we intervene in time by removing the child from the home, we are doing something for that parent instead of something to him. . . . Aggressive intervention is the prudent and proper treatment," he said.

"The emphasis is on meeting the needs of the parents. When these needs are met, then the child's needs will be met."

Dr. Kaplan explained that the task force committee is not yet committed to a trauma clinic such as the one Dr. Sheaff described. He said that they are still exploring alternatives in an attempt to find the appropriate approach for San Mateo County.

If a trauma clinic is decided upon, many people feel that Chope Hospital would be the logical location for the clinic. Asked if the current debate about closing the community hospital confused the issue, he admitted that it did. He also added that Chope already has several social services operating there and that fact might make it the appropriate place for a trauma clinic.

Another doctor suggested that an active trauma clinic in itself might be a legitimate reason to keep Chope operating.

Training

A man who is very young hung over my desk. "If there were no other reasons, we should impeach him because his personal life is a mess."

The remark recalls an essay on political honesty by the great Italian philosopher, Benedetto Croce. "When we must submit to a surgical operation, we never dream of hunting up an 'honest man.' What we ask for and do our best to find is a doctor or a surgeon, and we will take him, honest or dishonest, as he happens to be, provided he is a competent physician with a discerning clinical eye and a surgical hand that does not falter. But in politics we demand not politicians, by which I mean experts in statesmanship, but honest men, trained, if they are trained, in something besides politics."

Croce does not mean that government should be placed in the hands of men who will be dishonest in their public trust. Rather, he believes the competence of a leader should be judged on his training and his record in public life. Other men practice their professions with little fear of public concern for their private lives; why can't political leaders do the same?

He writes that society does not worry it a man is an unfaithful husband, a bad father, a corrupt libertine, or anything, until he aspires to politics. But then such things adulterer, but we accept his poetry for what it is as poetry, are considered even though they may have little bearing on one's job or one's competence as a statesman.

MR. CROCE WRITES that we may censure a spendthrift, dissolute or immoral poet as a gambler, a rake, and an adulterer but we accept his poetry for what it is as poetry, but we not only censure the politician for the "shortcomings" in his personal life, but we turn him out of office if his wife leaves him or his child fails, and this we do without thought of his "technical competence."

Croce believes that in the choice of leaders many voters forget that a man blessed with genius or real capacity for political leadership proceeds from a passion for his work, from his love for and his glory in public trust. For him, honesty and competent service are "the fundamental justification and purpose of his being." For such a man statesmanship is an art and "he will not consent under any circumstance to compromise his art."

Voters should look for such "honest men" for leaders, writes Croce, rather than probing the private lives of the candidates. He says history books are full of those "dubbed honest men" who could not bring honesty to public life, and with men who sought public office for selfish reason. Their record is nothing but "unmusical prose" and makes "ill-humored reading."

Croce's observations lead him to conclude that politicians without technical competence, "however revered for their spotless probity and for their intellect and learning," in fields other than politics, are soon retired from office "with a doctorate in ineptitude added to their other titles."

"Political genius and training for his calling makes a politician a statesman and for such persons the calling does not yield "to his lower instincts." To find such genius should be the major concern of voters.

To Benedetto Croce, then, a man's fitness to hold public office should be judged on his training, his passion for the work, and his competence while holding his job — nothing else. While one may not agree with Croce, his thoughts are worth consideration in an age where impeachment and recall have become household words.

A Steel Spider that Walks in the Ocean

By GEORGE GOLDING

Flying to work each morning in a helicopter, a dozen men who work over or under the sea have spent the last year or more on a steel platform known as "Spider" off the Pacifica shore.

They are the men who have built and are completing Pacifica's concrete fishing pier and ductile iron sewage outfall line half a mile into the deep green sea.

There is another handful of men on nearby "Derrick Nine," a crane-carrying barge, and several more among the Healy Tibbitts construction crews onshore.

Linking the three crews together is the job of helicopter pilots "Bud" Shipley of San Carlos, John Evans of San Leandro, and Bob Saunders of Hayward.

They haul the men to work, and have carried out to the "Spider" 300 tons of wet concrete which has been dumped atop the sewer outfall line on the ocean floor, to keep it from drifting away or being broken by the pounding sea.

"The first time I ever poured wet concrete in the ocean," says "Spider" superintendent Norm Jennings, from Eagle Point, Ore., "was 30 years ago. I told them they were all crazy, but I've poured a lot of concrete into the sea since then.

"You actually get a better concrete than you do on land."

Supervisor "Big John" Homan of Castro Valley keeps in touch with his three crews by radio, carrying on frequent conversations with Norm Jennings on the "Spider."

"Big John" has been on the job nearly two years, supervising construction of the concrete fishing pier jutting 1,050 feet into the Pacific, as well as the "outfall line" jutting into the sea another 1,650 feet.

He has directed assembly of the 378-ton "Spider," a huge steel platform that walked its way into the sea laying the 30-inch pipeline behind it.

In two weeks, after what he describes as "grand ceremonies" dedicating the fishing pier, "Big John" will oversee the job of walking the "Spider" back to the beach, and disassembling it to be shipped elsewhere in the world.

There are only two such walking platforms, and John says Healy Tibbitts holds the patent. "Spider I" is working in Hawaii, the one in Pacifica is "Spider II."

"Big John" describes "Spider II" as a pair of nesting tables, with extendable legs. As one set is extended, the other set is pulled up, and the platform slides along the top. Maximum speed is 200 feet per hour, and the "Spider" becomes virtually stationary when it is positioned for laying pipe and pouring concrete.

It is a platform from which the divers work, a landing point for the helicopter, a base for the pumps which shove wet concrete through tubes into the sea, a foundation for the huge "Manitowoc" crane run by Barney Hammond and his oiler, Jim Adams, both from Walnut Creek.

There are helicopter landing "pads" on both the "Spider" and the barge of "Derrick Nine." The "Spider's" platform is a seemingly tiny square of extended steel lath, surrounded by a larger area of safety net.

A helicopter fatality at the site several weeks ago reportedly occurred because the helicopter caught one of its landing skids in the safety net and flipped over on takeoff.

Pilots are now very careful, especially when setting down on the barge. The "Spider" is stable, but "Derrick Nine" continues to rock up and down with the sea, creating a very unstable feeling for a helicopter which has just landed. In addition, its wooden landing platform is only a few feet above water level and is often drenched by breaking waves.

At one corner of the "Spider" is a steel hopper into which concrete is dumped from the helicopters. Working atop the hopper, exposed to wind, seaspray, spattering concrete, and the possibility that a steel bucket may fall or a steel cable snap, is Leonard Wells, a "pilebutt" for Healy Tibbitts.

Operating the concrete pump into which Leonard pours the sloppy mixture is Roy Clancy of Alamo, head of R. W. Clancy Co., specialists in applying off-shore concrete.

Under 45 feet of sea, in water so thick with plankton and other suspended particles that visibility is reduced to about one foot, are the divers:

Domenic Ferreira of Hayward, Billy Hammond of Walnut Creek, Steve Gale of Redwood City, or Gene DeRosa, an underwater "building inspector" employed by Pan Marine Constructors. Steve also works for Pan Marine, but Dom and Billy work for Healy Tibbitts.

Billy is the son of crane-operator Barney Hammond, and has a stepbrother working on the barge carrying "Derrick Nine" a few dozen yards across the sea.

Tending the divers, running their air pumps, keeping their hoses untangled, and talking to them by phone as they grope their way along the bottom, is another crew:

Ed Koski, chief tender, from Capitola, Mike Skarry from Alameda, and Charlie Gibson from Castro Valley, both "pilebutts," and Billy Hammond, who lists himself as "diver and tender."

For some of them, like Barney Hammond who has been working off the beaches of Pacifica for more than a year now, the end of this job will mean somewhat of a disruption.

For others, like Norm Jennings who has only been on the "Spider" two months and says he has worked almost everywhere in the world except Vietnam, the change will be routine.

Bud Shipley, who has been working with Jim U'ren of Learjet in Reno, attached to Astrocopters of Oakland, may seek to follow the "Spider" when it is dismantled.

"Big John" says it will go either to the North Shore of Alaska, for oil drilling, or perhaps to a big construction job in Brazil.

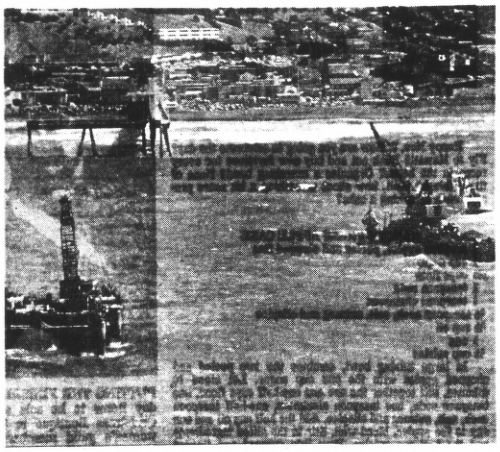
John Evans and Bob Saunders will probably continue to work together. John was Bob's helicopter flight instructor, and they work well as a team.

Out on the "Spider," when the helicopters are zipping in one after the other with loads of concrete, Bob acts as air traffic controller for the 'chopper pilots, who sometimes drive their whirling blades to within feet of Barney Hammond's crane, in 20-knot winds.

The reason for this kind of rushing finish to a job that has taken two years is that the outer 700 feet of Pacifica's 30-inch sewer outfall line is studded with upright "diffuser" pipes.

Standing 10 feet upward, every 30 feet along the main pipeline, and guyed by stainless steel rods, they create an underwater picket fence which could readily be swayed and shoved by the constantly surging ocean.

To prevent this motion from breaking the sewer main, the line has been laid into a trench 5 to 15 feet deep, dredged by the "Spider's" suction hoses. The inshore section was covered with soil and rock dumped from the brge, but the outer section is being covered with concrete.



JUTTING into the ocean 1,050 feet is Pacifica's new concrete fishing pier which also serves as a foundation for the 30-inch sewage outfall line probing another 1,650 into the sea. Work on the sewage disposal line is being completed by crews working on the "Spider" platform at lower left and on "Derrick Nine" barge at right center. (Post Photo by Mike Spinelli)

Irate Resident

D.C. 'Hotrod' Shooting

An irate Daly City resident unloaded a .38-caliber revolver into a car containing two youths as it sped past his home on Northridge Drive Oct. 30.

One of the bullets struck a 20-year-old passenger, Donald Lynch, in the throat.

He was listed in fair condition yesterday. Detective Harry Lax said that although the investigation into the incident is continuing, "at this time we believe there were six shots — a full load — emptied into the car."

Bronson H. Turley, 35, a San Francisco muni driver, living at 134 Northridge Drive, calmly surrendered to police on their arrival at the scene of the shooting.

He turned over a .38-caliber handgun to police, according to Lax, but would not make any statement on the matter.

Lax said Jeffrey Scott Williams, 20, of 619 Manila Way, Broadmoor, was apparently "hotrodding" his car on Northridge, taking Lynch to his home at 9 Menlo Way, Daly City — a few blocks from the shooting.

Williams braked his car suddenly, screeching to a halt.

He then allegedly backed over some lawns in the neighborhood and knocked down a small palm tree.

As he gunned his motor past Turley's home, the angered resident allegedly shot at the vehicle, according to police.

Turley has been charged with attempted murder and was arraigned in Northern San Mateo County Municipal Court Oct. 31.

SSF Contractor Takes Trip of Lifetime

Lynn W. Jaeger, a well known South San Francisco contractor, has returned from a trip of a lifetime.

He took his two daughters, aged 11 and 14, on a 36,000-mile $17,000 journey.

Beginning with a stop-over at Guatemala and Rio de Janeiro, the trio flew to Johannesburg, South Africa, where Jaeger rented a car and commenced an 8,000-mile tour of the African continent.

Jaeger knew where to take his daughters; in his youth he went to Africa as a missionary, and still knows many people there.

He was born in South San Francisco, but decided to leave his home town when he was unable to obtain work there during a period when he was paralyzed.

His recent trip to South Africa took him to diamond mines, gold mines and animal parks. His description of the South African Republic is that of a country which is booming, with its major industrial city, Johannesburg, studded with skyscrapers and boasting a population of over a million persons.

Jaeger shows pictures of one city where there are two civic centers, about four miles apart. One is for the whites, the other is for the blacks.

He also took pictures of child nurseries where black workers leave their children while working. The nurseries, he said, are airy, clean and modern and the children are well cared for.In Capetown, the Jaeger family visited an ostrich farm, and a park where they saw the dramatic scene of the Indian and Atlantic oceans meeting.

Jaeger drove the length of the continent — second largest in the world — exploring Rhodesia, Kenya, Sudan and Egypt. He found that it is virtually impossible to eschange currency of a neighboring country, even in border areas.

From Cairo, they visited Europe, stopping in Rome and Frankfurt.

He and his daughters are still sorting out their souvenirs, which include numerous native handiworks. He picked up a few diamonds, but one of his chief joys is a round antelope skin rug.

Yule Light Use Debated

A request from the Pacifica City Council that citizens limit their Christmas outdoor lighting to two hours each evening was softened after Councilman Stan Farber objected to placing limits on a religious festival when, he said, much energy was wasted elsewhere.

"I'm not going to have Christmas lights at my home," he declared, "but I do think that those who want to should be able to."

Mayor Aubrey Lumley asked Farber if he didn't use lights in his holiday celebration. Farber, who observes Chanukah, replied, "No, we use candles."

The resolution was changed to refer to the "holiday season," and that citizens be requested to limit their lighting display "voluntarily."

The reference to "two hours" was deleted.

The Rev. Patrick McMahon conducted the rites for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ochoa of South San Francisco and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hillyard of Burlingame. A reception followed at the Plumber's Hall in Burlingame.

When Delia walked to the altar with her father, she was dressed in a traditional white gown which featured a train. Mrs. David Keyser of Sunnyvale, the honor attendant, wore a baby blue dress. Also dressed in blue were bridesmaids Lucy Hillyard of Burlingame, the bridegroom's sister; Mrs. William Casados, the bride's sister; Gloria Silver of Los Angeles and Carolyn Miller of Hamilton, her cousin; and Angie Morillon of South San Francisco.

Thefts Alarm Salvation Army

Thefts from donation boxes, and the increasing popularity of flea markets, salvage shops and garage sales, are creating serious problems for the Salvation Army's long term rehabilitation project for alcoholics and other handicapped people.

Major George W. Duplain, director of the Army's Men's Social Service Center at 1500 Valencia St., San Francisco, said the tonnage of clothing donations to the Army has been off 100,000 pounds a month for the past 90 days, about a 30 per cent decrease.

He said the loss in thievery from Salvation Army boxes totals about $100,000 a year, in clothing and other items, and that there are now only about 65 of the big metal boxes on the streets. There used to be 180.

He said they were removed because it was impossible to keep persons from emptying them of their contents. One box, at a busy intersection, has been repeatedly robbed by a woman who puts her small boy in the box and takes the donated items from him as he hands them out, Duplain said, adding persons with pickup trucks make a regular practice of pilfering the boxes and selling the loot at flea markets and to second hand stores.

Duplain said thievery, and the competition from flea markets, garage sales and second hand stores, is cutting so sharply into furniture and clothes donations to the Army, that the Men's Social Service Center may have to cut back on its program.

The entire support of the program comes from goods sold in 10 Thrift Stores which the Center operates between Redwood City and Petaluma, and from "as is" items sold as salvage.

The Thrift Stores support a residential center, with a capacity of 128 persons at the Center's headquarters at 26th and Valencia. The residence adjoins shops, which refurbish and repair clothing, furniture and other items sold in the Thrift Stores.

The men who live in the Center residence work in the shops, turning out Thrift Store merchandise. The program also employs another 120 workers, not necessarily handicapped, from outside. Many of the outside workers are low income people from the Mission district.

Major Duplain said unless the situation looks up, it may be necessary to lay off some of the outside workers, and the center also may be forced to cut back on the rehabilitative services.

"This hardship comes at a time when we are attempting to upgrade the program," he said. "We have recently added another counselor to the staff, and we are looking forward to making other improvements in the counseling program.

"The decrease in clothing donations has been accompanied, of course, by a drop in donations of all kinds of other things, such as repairable furniture and television sets. That's because people often will donate clothing along with some other items.

"People are simply selling things they might ordinarily donate to us at flea markets, garage sales and to second hand stores$1. We used to average 500 phone calls a day. Now, many days, it is down to about 250."

He said that the gradual decline in phone calls and donations had been noted for a long period, but only for the last three months has the decline been apparent.

"The economic situation probably has something to do with the boom in second hand items, but mostly it is just because they are fun. People like to go shopping for bargains on the weekends," he said.

A side effect of the drop in donations, Duplain said, will be the Center's inability to give assistance to areas hit by a natural disaster. He said the Center sorts and boxes large quantities of clothing, to be shipped to disaster areas when needed. This emergency supply will be reduced if the steady drop in donations continues, he said.

SSF Police Wage, Benefit Hearing Writ

The South San Francisco Police Association has secured a Superior Court writ ordering a hearing to determine why its salary and benefit demands should not be considered independently of those of city fire department members.

A petition filed on behalf of the association by attorney Christopher D. Burdick, the city and Acting Manager Edward Alario, insisted that the city will not enter into an agreement with the association that is any different from the one offered firemen.

It is asserted in the complaint that the city will "not break parity" in negotiating for police wage and fringe benefits.

The alternative writ of mandate issued by Superior Court Judge Robert D. Miller directs the city to meet and confer with the police ass$1ociation without reference to wage parity with the fire department members, or to show cause why it will not do so, at a hearing scheduled for Nov. 21 at 9:35 a.m. in Redwood City.

SSF Personnel Director Feted

Alan Chew, director of personnel at Marsh and McLennan, Inc., has been elected vice president of the Insurance Personnel Management Association in San Francisco.

Chew a resident of South San Francisco, is active in local insurance and personnel management, and he is a member of American Society for Personnel Administration, American Society for Training and Development, American Administrative Society, Northern Calif. Industrial Relations Society.

I.P.M.A. is the oldest and largest insurance personnel association of its kind in the United States.

The Big Warrant Hassle In South San Francisco

By BOB PETERSON

The police traffic computer memory bank isn't perfect. But remember, its input is from man.

Therefore, it wasn't surprising when during the weekend a South San Franciscan challenged the machinery that has in the past been known to spew out questionable information.

But in this case, it remains the task of 27-year-old Robert Wayne Schaeffer to prove the computer wrong. He says he'll take the matter to court to do so.

It all started when Schaeffer, an unemployed apprentice cabinetmaker, was stopped by the California Highway Patrol on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge Friday night, allegedly because he was speeding.

The routine warrant check was made by police radio to determine whether Schaeffer had neglected to pay a parking fine or was wanted for any crime.

What turned up was an outstanding $10 traffic warrant for a parking violation issued by South San Francisco police on Sept. 30, 1971.

Although it carried Schaeffer's name, there was some apparent discrepancy in the address and the type of vehicle the warrant was issued on.

Schaeffer denied any knowledge of the warrant, and disclaimed any connection with it, saying it was issued to a man with his name who lived in Richmond.

But the CHP officers were persistent, too. And rather than spend the weekend in jail, Schaeffer paid the $10 fine and promised to fight in court to get his money back.

The hullabaloo he created sent both the CHP and South San Francisco officers scurrying to their files to check to see whether in fact there was some sort of computer mix-up.

As far as the South San Francisco Police Department is concerned there was no mix-up. Its spokesman said the warrant was valid and belongs to the same Robert Schaeffer who claims no title to it.

"We were requested to confirm the existence of that warrant Saturday morning," said South San Francisco Police Capt. James Datzman.

"This thing seems to be as cut and dried as anything can be," said Datzman. "The license on the warrant, when checked out through the Department of Motor Vehicles, showed the same address (of the Grand Hotel in South San Francisco) where he now lives."

Datzman explained that when a warrant is issued, after a traffic ticket becomes delinquent, it contains the license number of the car and the full name and address of the individual as it appears on the vehicle registration.

In this case, the address on the registration was in Richmond. Schaeffer admits to having once lived in Richmond, but not at the address given on the warrant.

When the traffic citation became delinquent, the South San Francisco police sent the warrant to Richmond for service. When there was no response at that address, the warrant was routinely dropped into the computer bank.

"From our standpoint there was a valid warrant in effect. It was to a vehicle registered to his name. The only question was the address," said Capt. Datzman.

The go-between CHP noted that at the time Schaeffer was stopped, he also didn't have a current registration, and had an expired driver's license.

Schaeffer Monday charged that it was this ubiquitous warrant "that tied my new license up." He said that he had applied for the new license in plenty of time and was waiting for it to come in the mail. It has not yet arrived, he said.

"I'm going to set up a court date and deal with it," promised Schaeffer, but said he didn't know exactly when.

In addition to the address discrepency, Schaeffer said that at the time the warrant was issued he owned a different type of car than was listed on the warrant.

"I'm not saying it's (Schaeffer's denials) beyond the realm of possibility," said Capt. Datzman. "But as far as we're concerned, it was a valid warrant confirmed to the CHP who acted on that basis."

So as it now stands, Schaeffer, if he wants to appeal, can appear in court and present his explanation to a judge, who has the authority to dismiss the warrant.

What about the traffic stop that caused all this commotion? That's between Schaeffer and the CHP.

Cablevision Called A 'Failure'

Midwest newspaper publisher Morgan Murphy.

Last January, when it became evident TCI could not meet its franchise commitments, a six-month extension was granted by the city.

That extension is now some four months past due.

City Manager David Rowe said.

Rowe said no meetings had yet been set with officials of the company, but he expected the City Council soon would ask for a progress report and explanation of why the agreed-upon schedule had not been met.

Company officials met with Peninsula city representatives concerning matters relative to cable television during a lengthy discussion in San Carlos Oct. 31.

Assistant Daly City Manager Ray Letsinger said he did not feel cable company officials attending the meeting had answered specific questions on the Daly City system, which he said is now 65 per cent complete.

Records indicate Daly City has some 2,500 subscribers to the system, which is designed to bring in 20 channels.

"We're now getting about two-and-a-half channels, if we're lucky," Hillside Homeowners' Association President Frank Loretta said, when asked how reception was in the Hillside-Market St. area.

A recent survey conducted by the Hillside Association among its member-cable users (60 homes) disclosed that 85 per cent of those answering feel the company's promise to prove 20 "clear channels" has not been kept.

Biggest complaint from these subscribers, who pay $75 a year for the service, was poor reception. These same subscribers, however, praised the cable company staff for handling their complaints courteously (71 per cent).

Loretta, in the Oct. 29, 1973, letter to Mayor Anthony Giammona said, "It was our impression that the Vista Grande Cable TV office here is not getting the attention it deserves from its parent organization (in Colorado)."

Lee denied this.

He said Daly City is "getting as much attention as any of our other offices, perhaps more."

Nor had Lee heard about the survey conducted by the Hillside Homeowners group.

He expressed surprise that the quality of reception was poor in the Hillside area and said, "They should be getting channels clear.

"The reception should be the same throughout the city, it's all from the same head-in site," Lee explained.

Hiring of additional maintenance personnel and modification of equipment should alleviate the situation to the satisfaction of subscribers and city officials, Lee said.

80 Defend Mrs. Fassler

The Half Moon Bay Chamber of Commerce's criticism of Supervisor Jean Fassler several weeks ago on her votes to allow some cities and districts to get out of the San Mateo County Harbor District drew a sharp response from some Coastside residents last week.

The letter, signed by 80 persons from Pacifica to La Honda, called the Chamber a "special interest group" which "should not presume to speak for all the people of Mrs. Fassler's district when you have not consulted with them."

Some of the signers are well-known Coastside environmentalists opposed to the $13 million, 1050-boat berth development at Pillar Point Harbor.

So far, six cities and four special districts in the county have asked the Local Agency Formation Commission to de-annex them from the district, claiming they shouldn't pay into it because they don't get corresponding benefit from it. Mrs. Fassler voted for the de-annexations. LAFCO had a rehearing recently at the harbor district's request.

Last week's letter was written by Mrs. Fran Pollard, 422 Santa Maria Avenue, El Granada, who said she has only a week and a half to gather the signatures.

Mrs. Fassler has been invited to speak at a Half Moon Bay Chamber luncheon to outline her views, but no date has been set yet.

"The Chamber of Commerce is composed of people who hope to profit from this ambitious harbor development while the residents pay for it through higher and higher taxes. We sympathize with those municipalities and districts who feel that their tax dollars are needed for more pressing priorities.

"The Chamber . . . opposed the Coastal Initiative with similar phrases, but the initiative received a majority vote not only in Mrs. Fassler's district but throughout the county as a whole.

"We feel Mrs. Fassler is most responsive to her constituents and reflects her opinions with her vote on LAFCO."

the group's "grave concern" for alleged procrastination on the part of Daly City to get BART into the area.

In a handwritten note attached to the petition, Pavellas asked "Just what are you holding it (BART) up for?"

Pavellas' supporters weren't the only placard-carrying persons attending the ceremony.

Striking beer truck drivers were on hand to pass out leaflets as were candidates for the San Francisco supervisorial elections.

The Jefferson High School band played outside the station under clear blue skies.

Service on the latest section of BART will be five days a week, from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. It was hoped BART would keep the trains running later during the Christmas season.

Transbay service through the tube will not start for at least another year, BART officials said, because of what has been described as safety hazards involved in the train control system.

Until modifications in this system are made, there was fear of a rear-end collision as trains used the under-bay tube between Oakland and San Francisco.

Once this full service is started, a rider can board a train in Daly City and go either to Fremont, Concord or Richmond. From any one of these stations a rider can return to Daly City without changing trains.

'Bartbus' Service Announced

For the added convenience of shoppers, the merchants of Westlake Shopping Center will provide free shuttle bus service between the Center and the Daly City Bart Station, it has been announced by Edwin Speer, president of the Westlake Merchants Association.

The free service starts at 10 a.m. today and will operate weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The Westlake "Bartbus" can be boarded at the main entrance at the north end of the Westlake Mall near Zale's Jewelers. It will operate at intervals of 15 minutes between Westlake and the Bart Station.

Killing Charged to Ex-Pacifican

Kenneth J. McMillian, a 23-year-old former butcher from Pacifica, has been charged with the beating death of a San Francisco man by police in that city.

McMillian presently is serving a nine-month term in San Mateo County's jail in Redwood City for being drunk in public and violation of probation, according to Sgt. Leroy Jones.

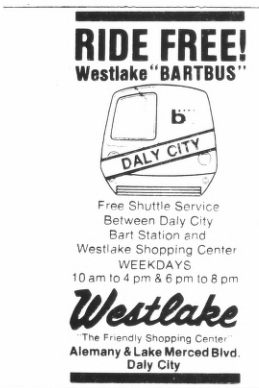
San Francisco homicide inspectors reported that McMillian is suspected in the killing of Ellis T. Code, 40, of San Francisco. His body was found under an underpass on the Great Highway last March 15. He had been robbed of less than $20, authorities said.

Inspectors said McMillian reportedly had met Code in a saloon.

Jail records show that McMillian was arrested in this county on the drinking charge May 29. He was sentenced to six monthsin jail fr35by Municipal Court Judge F. by Municipal Court Judge P. Jose de Larios, and later was given a term for probation violation.

According to court records, McMillian had a string of arrests from the time he was nine years old. Latest records show he was sentenced to four months in the county jail nearly two years ago for possession of marijuana.

Probation Officer P. A. Disterhoff reported to Superior Court Judge W. Howard Hartley at that time that McMillian was serving several consecutive jail sentences for misdemeanor offenses.



Scouts Collecting Reusable Items

Reusable items are being collected by Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts as part of a San Mateo County Community Service Project. In association with The Salvation Army and Goodwill Industries, the San Mateo County Council Boy Scouts of America is sponsoring a Goodwill-Goodturn Day program according to Duane McDowell, Council Activities chairman.

November 10, Scouts and their leaders will distribute collection bags to homes throughout the county. Nov. 17, the bags will be collected by the Scouts and delivered to collection depots located at Safeway Stores locally in Daly City, Linda Mar, Pacifica and South San Francisco.

The reusable items will then be distributed between Salvation Army and Goodwill Industries to be used in their Social Service and Rehabilitation Programs.

This year, 10 Scout Councils will be participating in the Goodwill-Goodturn Day Program throughout the Bay Area. Other Councils participating are: Alameda, Marin, Mount Diablo, Piedmont, San Francisco Bay Area, Santa Clara, Silverado, Sonoma-Mendocino and Stanford.

Enough items are collected by Scouts throughout the Bay Area to provide a full months supply of materials that are repairable.

Scouting recognizes the need to provide reusable items to the Salvation Army and Goodwill Industries who continue to provide opportunities of work and acceptance for people who live with some form of handicap.

Cemeteries Go To Daly City

Annexation to Daly City of five small ethnic cemeteries totaling 22½ acres on a knoll overlooking Junipero Serra Boulevard in the unincorporated area bounded by Daly City, Colma and South San Francisco was recommended Oct. 31 by the County Local Agency Formation Commission.

Commission Executive Officer B. Sherman Coffman said that the annexation, which was not opposed, was recommended by the city of Daly City after cemetery operators asked the city to provide water service.

The annexation was recommended on the condition that the area be withdrawn from the Colma Lighting District.

RAMS EDGE SSF, 7-6

Sub Stars in Westmoor Win

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

A crook of the finger Friday afternoon may seem well mean the 1973 North Peninsula League footba championship for Westmoor High.

With that one motion assistant coach Bob Lotti beckoned Tom Herbert from the sidelines to replace the starting right defensive end. That move meant a 7-6 win for Westmoor over South San Francisco, a loss that eliminated the Warriors from further title hopes.

Herbert, the regular starting right end, played what many ce was one t best game possible on defense. Twice he recovered Warrior fumbles, the first recovery leading to the winning touchdown.

He then stopped Warrior sweeps on two crucial fourth-down plays, contained virtually all outside running to his side and, just for good measure, caught two important passes on offense to keep the ball in the Rams' hands.

Until Herbert entered the game things appeared bleak for the Rams. Overanxiousness had caused two crucial penalties. A bad punt and roll resulted in a one-yard kick that set up the Warriors on the Ram 29 and John McKeon's 11-yard run gave SSF a 6-0 lead.

The PAT kick was simply wide — no defensive pressure on the kicker, a good snap, good placement and a high enough kick but it sailed wide. [illegible] appeared in good shape having averaged seven yards a carry on the first series. But that was [illegible] from then on.

Penalties had been obviously piled on each team as there was more than nine fall on going on between tackles. Then a poor exchange between quarterbacks Bob Dean Jr. and Dick Nelson resulted in the fumble recovery by Herbert and the Rams had their chance.

Starting from the Warrior 24, Wes [illegible] moved on a nine-yard pass from Harold Sale to Herbert and punched out four running plays with fullback Dan Tong hitting over under a pileup from the one. Bill Korbus added the one-point kick that meant the victory.

The Westmoor defense played brilliantly. Six times Westmoor stopped the Warrior running attack inside the 25-yard line — four of those times it was inside the 20.

The final stop came when, on a fourth down and inches situation with 4:24 remaining, Herbert met McKeon in the backfield for a three-yard loss and a virtual standing ovation from the stands.

"I have to take full responsibility for calling that sweep play," admitted Warrior coach Ray DeJong. "I had assumed we had made the first down on the previous play and was not really worried about the three-yard loss until everybody came off the field. That's not a call I would have gone with had I realized at the time that it was fourth down."

McKeon, the league's best runner, was the only consistent offense for either side. The senior halfback ran for 86 tough yards in 20 carries against Westmoor, 26 yards more than the entire Ram backfield could muster.

South City's lone bright outlook was the fact that the Warriors handled Westmoor in almost every offensive category. They outrushed the winners 158-52 and out-first-downed Westmoor, 15-7.

Linebacker Jerry Olmo played an outstanding defensive game for South SF, an effort which could have earned him star billing in any other game. But this time a fellow named Herbert was on the same field.

Bulldog Harriers Unseated

San Jose CC replaced College of San Mateo as Golden Gate Conference cross country champion Friday, defeating the Bulldogs 17-43 in the league finale on CSM's own Belmont course.

Jaguar ace Steve Brooks rubbed salt in the wounds by setting a record of 20:39.2 for the four-mile Crystal Springs course, erasing the year-old standard of 20:48.8 he (CSM's Jim Van Dine, who has been sidelined this season with an injur...

It was the second straight loss for the Bulldogs, who had their four-season unbeaten string stopped at 22 duals last week by Diablo Valley. CSM coach Bob Rush is still hopeful the Mateans can gain one of the Northern California spots in the state meet for a fourth straight year, when the Bulldogs host the Northern Cal fornia championships next Saturday.

Ed Barney was CSM's top finisher Friday, finishing fourth in 21:28.

Skyline Harriers Finish Second

Cabrillo College held off the challenge of host Skyline and won the Coast Conference cross-country championship Saturday.

Teams wound up in the same order as in the dual meet season as Cabrillo scored 30 points to 45 for Skyline and 61 for Monterey Peninsula — all state-ranked teams in the small division.

Cabrillo's Ben De La Garza became the third man in two days to break the Crystal Springs course record established by College of San Mateo's Jim Van Dine last year, obliterating the old mark of 20:48.8 and the pending record of 20:39 with a 20:21.9 clocking.

An hour later, West Valley's Matt Sommer ran 20:44.14 in leading the Vikings to the Camino Norte Conference championship, as they just edged College of Marin, 51-53. Canada was sixth with 191 points.

McCovey Trade

Wells Twombly, the fine San Francisco Examiner sports columnist, ruined my column plans for the week when he explained last Sunday what the Willie McCovey trade was really all about.

Twombly was the first reporter, to our knowledge, who explained the fact that McCovey, being a 10 year man, had the right of refusal in any Giant trade plans for him. That, among several others, was going to be the point of my column.

On the night of McCovey's trade to San Diego for Padre lefty Mike Caldwell, we were startled to hear the reaction of the so-called electronic media sports "editors" in San Francisco. We have for years been aware of the sparkling ineptitude of this group, but couldn't believe the roasting to which Horace Stoneham was submitted at their fumbling hands.

All they could find to "report" was previous bad trades by Stoneham, and the admittedly below par record of Caldwell, whom they failed to point out is a young man who has pitched for possibly baseball's worst team for the past two years.

ONE CLOWN even went so far as to suggest that his two news-reading colleagues had better arms than Caldwell, while another said that Caldwell hasn't a strikeout pitch and, "You can't win in the National League without a strikeout pitch."

We won't go into all of the pitchers who win in the NL without strikeout pitches, but will remind that particular "expert" that Caldwell has averaged 5.5 strikeouts per game during his brief big league career, and you can't do that throwing lollipops to the plate. Caldwell this year allowed fewer hits than innings pitched and has a strikeout to walk ratio of about two to one.

Baseball men consider the latter two statistics to be significant, possibly more significant than win-loss records and ERA's with weakly defensed teams who don't hit, either.

NOT ONLY didn't the tube boobs balance their comments with mentions of Stoneham's good trades, but only one of them had the courtesy and reportorial sense to interview McCovey within 24 hours of the trade, even though he had already leveled his blast at Stoneham. Four days later, another did get around to talking to McCovey and he found what Twombly had correctly pointed out. As big Willie explained it, he refused to go to the American League, where Stoneham might have been able to trade better, because McCovey, a man of pride, feels he still has a few years left in the field and because he knows NL pitchers better. His philosophy is that he can always go to the American League as a designated hitter when his legs really go on him.

McCovey didn't mention this, but once he refused the AL, and let it be known that he preferred to remain on the Coast, with its knee-soothing weather, San Diego was about all that was left. Certainly the Giants wouldn't trade Willie to the hated Dodgers, and the Angels and A's, of course, are in the wrong league. Even if McCovey had consented to an AL trade, the A's and Angels would have been out, the A's for obvious reasons, and the Angels because they had just traded away their only decent southpaw, Clyde Wright.

AND BESIDES, McCovey pointed out, Stoneham WANTED Caldwell, a young man (24) who keeps the ball down, an advantage when a team has Chris Speier and Tito Fuentes to flag down ground balls. It may also be possible that Caldwell was about the best left hander available, anyway. Read any issue of baseball's bible, the Sporting News, and you'll find that almost every team talking trade has on its priority list a left handed pitcher.

One final pros'ble consideration, far out as it may seem, is that more than ridding himself of a large salary, Stoneham may have been trying to help his old rival-friend Buzzie Bavasi, a not totally unselfish act. If Stoneham can help keep the Padres in San Diego by giving them drawing cards, that will keep the Washington franchise open. And that in turn will give Charley Finley one more American League escape route.

THE ONLY ASPECT of the trade we can really criticize is the inclusion of Bernie Williams in the deal. He was a big prospect before Bobby Bonds and can run, throw, and has hit better than .300 in the Coast League for the past three seasons. While the Giants do have a surplus of quality outfielders even without Williams, it's also true that he is still a big prospect as far as several outfielder-hungry big league teams are concerned. It seems to us that Williams might have reeled something in on his own, without being an entry with McCovey.

Sporting News readers, incidentally, not only know about the shortage of adequate quality southpaws, but careful reading two weeks ago might have prepped them for the McCovey trade when a story on the Padres told of how they were planning to trade for name, quality players, the types that draw fans.

But then we guess that even the Sporting News can't always be trusted, because in that same issue there appeared a story quoting new Texas manager Billy Martin as stating that among his "untouchables" were rookie third baseman Bill Madlock and infielder-outfielder Vic Harris. The ink was barely dry when Martin traded Madlock and Harris to the Cubs for Ferguson Jenkins.

ONE LAST NOTE on baseball (for a while); one of those items we save for the overlapping of baseball and football seasons (which we obviously didn't time right this year), because they relate to both sports.

This one is in defense of baseball players and the frequent allegations that they do not play a physically

San Diego St.'s Jess Freitas

SJS TITLE HOPES DASHED

Freitas' Comeback Dazzling

By DAN BERTELLOTTI
Post Correspondent

Jesse Freitas Jr. is a quiet young man away from a football field.

But give him a quick glance at a receiver breaking into the open and his actions speak louder than boasts ever could.

Freitas put on a memorable passing show Saturday night in San Jose, bringing San Diego State back from a 17-point fourth quarter deficit to tie San Jose State 27-27.

The senior from San Mateo's Serra High hit a phenomenal 29 of 46 passes for 429 yards; 292 yards and three TD's in the last half alone.

But as much as Freitas did, it took a 35-yard field goal by Benny Ricardo with two seconds left to attain the tie. The boot just did clear the crossbar as the Spartans stood by stunned.

The tie for San Diego was as big as a win. The Aztecs are now the odds-on choice to take the PCAA title standing at 1-0-1 with weak opponents Fresno and Long Beach to come. San Jose is also unbeaten in the PCAA, but pretty much out of it at 2-0-2.

During the final two Aztec drives which, Spartan coach Darryl Rogers went with a three-man rush which all but spelled doom for San Jose.

"That's the kind of defense where you give up something but you're also gaining something," said Freitas. "They can put a lot of people back there on pass defense with that three-man rush and you really have to wait to find somebody open. Of course I was getting plenty of time; the protection was great."

Only Wildman Dave Wasick of the front "three" came anywhere near Freitas. With the time he had, he could have completed passes to Moffett Field.

San Diego did its best to let San Jose score, turning the ball over seven times on five fumbles and two interceptions.

"We were lucky to be in the game at all, considering all those turnovers," stated Freitas. "It could hae been the cold, but I'm not sure. I really don't know what the problem was. It's never happened before. But it sure was discouraging."

After San Jose had recovered a fumbled punt by SDS on the Aztec 24, Craig Kimball hit Robert Evans with a five-yard TD toss in the corner of the end zone to put the Spartans up 27-10 and things looked rosy.

But with 8:42 left, Freitas went to work. He conserved time by hitting Keith Denson with a 59-yard TD strike two plays and 17 seconds later.

After a punt Freitas went back to work with 4:42 left. He drove his team 91 yards in 10 plays with Darold Nogle latching on to a deflected pass for the score.

Three plays later, the Spartans punted it back. Jesse had 82 yards to travel and only 1:51 to do it in. That drive culminated 13 plays later with Ricardo's game-tying field goal. Freitas completed five of nine passes on the drive.

On that drive, Freitas was faced with a third and one at his own 28. "I knew we didn't have much to do for the first down, so I figured I might be running if things opened up inside and the opening was there," said Freitas. He did run, for eight yards and the drive stayed alive.

Twice during the game, Spartan pass receivers were knocked down attempting to catch a Kimball pass, but nothing was called.

Colts, Sharks Maintain Pace

If El Camino or Oceana high schools are to gain a share of first place in the NPL they won't have to rely on anyone else to do their dirty work.

Both the Colts and Sharks won Friday and kept themselves one game off the undefeated pace of Westmoor. Both teams will get a shot at Westmoor in the upcoming final two weeks of the season.

Despite fumbling 11 times, Oceana managed to run its personal record-setting win streak to four yesterday by downing Serramonte 19-7. El Camino downed Terra Nova 16-7 and Half Moon Bay beat Jefferson 22-6.

Oceana lost eight of those 11 drops, but in between times ran up 211 yards rushing and another 80 passing. Calvin Ellison, vastly improved after an early-season injury, gained 147 yards in 21 carries to pace the Shark attack.

Oceana's secondary picked off five Serramonte passes, including the first pass the Regents threw, on the first play, as Steve Schuezler ran it in for a 38-yard score.

El Camino's defense held Terra Nova to just one first down and 45 yards offense as the Colts clung to their hopes of a first place finish.

Halfback Bill Sartin caught passes both ways. The senior runner gathered in a 64-yard bomb from Gene Montgomery for a quick retaliation after Terra Nova's Reggie Pomiepie gave the Tigers a temporary 7-0 lead. Sartin also had two interceptions on defense.

El Camino's offense rolled up 323 yards, with fullback Phil Marty ambling for 82 of them. But it was the Colt secondary and a strong defense against the rush that completely throttled Terra Nova's chances at an upset.

Halfback Don Weaver, back from an enforced two-week layoff, made his presence felt immediately, as he scored one touchdown and a PAT for Half Moon Bay in the Cougars' mild upset.

Halfback Perry Martin was a one-man work gang for the Cougars, scoring on a short one-yard pass from Chris Goedz and gathering in what proved to be the winning PAT toss.

Both Weaver and fullback Rolfe Stevens were injured and sat out the latter part of the game.

Alert defense set up two of the three Half Moon Bay scores. Raymond Rey's fumble recovery on the 39 preceded the first TD while Martin's last-period interception set up the final Cougar score.

debilitating game. In answer to that proposition, we quote from baseball authority Harold Seymour in his book, Baseball, the Golden Age:

"Contrary to popular belief, injuries are more common in baseball than they are in games of body contact. Serious injuries may not be frequent . . . but the incidence of lesser injuries is much greater. The season is long, and few escape a sore arm, pulled muscle, sprained ankle, twisted knee, or split finger somewhere along the line. And since baseball is a game of finesse and fine training, a slight injury, even a blister, is often enough to sideline a man."

Ana may we remind you that the Mets, this year, suffered eight fractures. Name a football team with that record.

LOCAL NOTES: Millbrae resident Eddie Mulligan, president of the California League, former major league infielder and one of the all-time great Pacific Coast League third basemen, has been inducted into the St. Louis Soccer Hall of Fame. Mulligan needless to say, was a soccer star in the St. Louis area — where soccer has always been big — during the '20s.

Jeff Wellemeyer, former Terra Nova all league forward who also starred at Skyline College for the past two years, is now listed on the San Francisco State varsity preseason roster. At 6-4, Wellemeyer is one of the biggest men on the squad. The way he scored and rebounded at both Terra Nova and Skyline, he should be a real addition to the small but usually clever Gators.

TAG END: How good is the UCLA running game? So good that UCLA leads the Pac-8 in total offense with a passing offense that ranks last. The rest of it is ALLLLL running. That's how good their running game is!

Add Salmon to Supper Omelet

In "Salmon Supper Omelet" the fish and vegetables are all a part of the recipe and easily prepared.

Omelets are a basic food, similar to scrambled eggs but not quite — they are eggs, seasonings and water — combined, cooked and folded into an envelope shape. The French word for this folded long, flat shape causing them to look like a blade gave omelets their name.

The salmon extends the egg's protein while the dill weed and lemon juice give the dish a lot of spark.

Omelets are tender, moist and cook quickly in the right size pan. Make sure the pan is well-seasoned since it is important for the omelet to slide freely. Essentials in omelet cooking are: Not beating the eggs too much, not too many eggs per omelet — 6 at the most, quick cooking and immediate serving and eating.

SALMON SUPPER OMELET

6 eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1-3 cup water
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1 can (7¾ oz.) salmon, drained and flaked
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon flour
1 package (10 oz) leaf spinach, cooked and drained

SALMON FILLING

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Beat egg yolks and pepper together until thick and lemon-colored. Add water, salt and lemon peel to egg whites and beat until stiff but not dry. Fold yolks into whites.

Heat butter in a large (10 x 2-in.) skillet with an ovenproof handle until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in omelet mixture; level surface gently. Reduce heat. Cook slowly until puffy and lightly browned on bottom, about 5 minutes. Lift omelet at edge to judge color. Bake in a preheated 350 degree F. oven for 12 to 15 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean.

While omelet is baking, prepare filling. In a small saucepan, combine sour cream and flour. Stir in butter, lemon juice, salt and dill weed. Add salmon. Heat over low heat, stirring gently, until thoroughly heated. To serve: Slide omelet on to platter; spoon salmon filling on ½ of omelet and fold over remaining omelet half. Arrange spinach around half of omelet. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Canned Pears for Easy Dessert

For a family dinner or an evening coffee party, Quick Pear Pecan Tarts are a fast, easy dessert that takes advantage of the convenience and flavor of canned Bartlett pears.

The rich tart filling is made from butterscotch pudding mix altered with the addition of dark corn syrup and chopped pecans. The filling is spooned into tart shells made from a pie crust mix and topped with a canned pear half. A fluff of whipped cream and a pecan half add the finishing touch.

Canned Bartlett pears may be used just as they come from the can in salads, entrees and accompaniments, desserts, baked dishes, appetizers or quick breakfast treats.

QUICK PEAR PECAN TARTS

1 (29 oz.) can Bartlett pear halves
1 (11 oz.) package pie crust mix
1 (4 oz.) package butterscotch pudding and pie filling mix
¼ cup dark corn syrup
1¾ cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped pecans
Whipped cream or frozen whipped topping
Pecan Halves

Drain and chill pears, reserving pear syrup for another use. Prepare pie crust mix according to package directions. Roll out to fit 8 shallow 4-inch tart pans. Bake at 425 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes until golden brown. Cool and remove from tart pans. Combine pudding mix and corn syrup in saucepan. Add milk gradually, stirring until mixture is smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is boiling and thickened. Add vanilla and chopped pecans. Chill. Spoon into cooled tart shells. Top each with pear half. Garnish with whipped cream and pecan half. Makes 8 tarts.

PLAIN TALK ABOUT GROUND BEEF

Lucky ground beef is carefully prepared to give excellent quality in each of the two types offered:

TYPE	FAT CONTENT OBJECTIVE
Ground Beef	Approx. 25
Extra Lean Ground Beef	Approx. 16

Even with the most modern equipment and technology, and scientific as it is, it is not possible to guarantee that every package will be of the fat content objective. Despite our best efforts, variations of up to five percentage points may still occur.

Our objective is that a pound of Ground Beef contains approximately 12.8 ounces of lean meat, and that a pound of Extra Lean Ground Beef contains approximately 13.4 ounces of lean meat. Tastes differ regarding the desired degree of leanness, and taste may well determine which type you select. The cost conscious shopper should remember that the cost per ounce of lean meat is lower in Ground Beef than in Extra Lean Ground Beef.

Lucky ground beef is 100% all meat. Unlike certain Lucky's Brand Lucky Boast products guaranteed customer satisfaction. If you are not fully satisfied, we will refund your money promptly.

Health Executives Select Capt. Charles

Popular Larry Stockton, manager of Jack La Lanne's European Health Spa in San Mateo, and his right-hand man Ron Jonson, "dropped anchor" at Nick Gust's new Captain Charles seafood restaurant in Rockaway Beach last week. Their order was Crab Legs Ambassador. We ought to know — we were seated at the next table enjoying the same dish, which is great for the appetite and not bad for the waistline . . . . The New Southern's spacious "Southern Room" is always in demand for elegant wedding receptions and buffets. At no time of the year is this more evident than during the Holidays. Call now to inquire about the remaining available dates . . . . The musical-comedy duo of Terry Canady and Rudy Perez currently featured at the Mivako Hotel is a must for show-goers. An $11,000 Cadillac Eldorado will be given as a door prize.

DIRECT FROM GREECE — Trio Bel Canto, Jackie Onassis' favorite group, has been booked direct from Greece to entertain at the Plaka Taverna, one of San Francisco's most outstanding Greek supperclubs, on November 12, 13, 14, and 15 only. The new Finocchio show, which offers a blend of musical comedy hits, is a great applause-getter. Children's dinners are also served, so bring the whole family, amigos . . . . The Ben Jonson, a Elizabethan restaurant located in The Cannery, features authentic medieval feasts every evening. Shirt Tail Built With Comfort in Mind

Adrian Stickney built his showplace, the Shirt Tail, with comfort in mind. The multi-level Palo Alto restaurant is a marvel of taste and relaxation. A massive wooden door admits diners into a carpeted foyer. A large fireplace is surrounded by plush, plaid chairs. Tables are well-spaced for comfort. Original oil paintings, French Baroque mirrors, beamed ceilings and rock walls blend into an appealing, visually-rich decor . . . . You never know who you are going to be seated next to while dining at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City. Among those to enjoy a delightful Saturday evening here were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Balestra, who were entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Perry, and Len Rodi and Dave Wilcox. Mary Lou and Fred Fox had the pleasure of meeting the famed Fifi Dorsey, who was appearing in "Follies" at Circle Star . . . . First time patrons at Phil Lehr's Steakery in downtown San Francisco do a fast double-take when they see well-dressed patrons in the elegant Wellington Room wearing huge, flaming red bibs. Police Nab Wrong Boy

A 14-year-old boy whom police at first mistook for his brother, a California Youth Authority escapee, led officers on a half-hour chase into the hills above Half Moon Bay High School yesterday morning, but was taken into custody after being spotted by a sheriff's helicopter.

A sheriff's office patrol unit also joined the search for the boy, who ran from the school grounds when approached by police.

Half Moon Bay Police Sgt. John Gonzales chased him south into the hills and reportedly missed him when the youth went into hiding. But the helicopter crew saw the boy from above and directed Gonzales back to him from about 9:45 a.m.

Police learned later than the boy had been a runaway

S.S.F. Swim Programs Rescued

Trustees of the South San Francisco Unified School District forestalled Monday the elimination of several swimming courses asked by the district staff because of increasing costs.

The trustees unanimously agreed that the district find alternative means of "shaving the swimming program" without damaging instructional classes.

Specifically, the board requested that the staff ask the city to take over the recreational part of the program at both South San Francisco and El Camino High School and that a nominal fee increase for special swimming classes be investigated.

Last month, in light of escalating maintenance costs, District Supt. Dr. Paul Nielsen recommended the elimination of weekend swimming; the Spring Swim Program; family night; adult lessons; and a cut in summer lessons at the two school pools.

At last night's meeting Dr. Nielsen made it clear he regretted recommending the cuts, but said costs dictated a curtailment of course offerings. He said he would have liked to keep the whole program.

And apparently so would have many parents who attended the meeting, including Mrs. Rona Basanez.

"I don't think that a pool's ever been built to make money; they've been built for community use. If you want to save money," she continued, "I suggest that you get together with the city to see if you can dovetail the use of the pools we have."

South San Francisco maintains Orange Municipal Pool, an indoor facility under the Recreation Department. It offers recreational swimming, physical fitness programs for adults and a swim team.

Mrs. Basanez' sentiments were echoed by Mrs. Shirley Scovill, who reiterated comments contained in a letter she sent to the district last week.

"If the district closes some of the courses at the high schools, children will be forced to swim at Orange Pool. Right now recreational swimming at Orange Pool is overtaxed; there is barely enough room to stand in place," she said.

Mrs. Scovill suggested that the district charge higher fees for pool use to keep the recreational programs, a comment challenged by Dr. Nielsen.

"We have been investing educational funds in a swimming program and have been going deeper and deeper in the loss column. "I am in favor of the instructional courses, but I don't think we are in the business of recreation," Dr. Nielsen said.

Trustee Thomas Henkle and Board President Leo Padreddii agreed that the district should concentrate on instructional swimming programs, and it was the consensus of the board that the district ask the city to assume the responsibilities of a recreational swimming.

Dr. Nielsen said he would check with the city immediately and report to the board later other recommendations for cutting swimming program costs.

In other matters the board:

—Declined, by taking no action, to authorize the appointment of an elementary curriculum specialist, an addition to the staff. Both the Certificated Employes Council and the Classroom Teachers Association opposed the proposed staff addition.

—Approved the district's participation in the development of a Special Education Master Plan for San Mateo County and in the submission of an ESEA application for federal funding. The participation will not involve expenditure of district funds.

Fight Over Legal Fees

By

Let the judge decide!

This was the decision of the South San Francisco City Council Monday, after pondering a claim for the legal fees in Keith Fazackerley's successful fight for reinstatement as a police officer.

"This man has virtually gone through hell," Councilman Terry Mirri declared. "The public humiliation this man has suffered has no price. We have done this man wrong. We would be morally wrong not to give him his due."

Councilman Bill Borba moved that "we entertain this man's claim." Mirri seconded the motion, but it lost by a 2-3 vote.

Councilman Patrick Ahern voted against granting the $6,000 claim, explaining that he did not wish to involve Fazackerley in a taxpayer's suit. He said he wanted to pay the claim in a legal manner.

Ahern then moved that the city manager be authorized to compromise and settle the claim for $6,000, pursuant to the authority of the Government Code. The motion was passed.

The effect of this motion, City Atty. John Noonan explained, would be this: Acting City Mgr. Ed Alario would refuse to pay the money, on advice of the city attorney, and Fazackerley's attorney, Thomas L. Bocci, then would file a writ of mandamus in Superior Court, with a judge deciding whether or not it is legal for the city to pay Fazackerley's legal expenses.

Noonan said he thought his process would take five to 10 days, and certainly no more than 20 days.

"We're going to set a precedent in this city that isn't going to stop," declared Councilman Frank Mammini, in opposing Borba's motion. "We are going to pay the fees of every attorney who sues us. . . By law, this is not legal. . . We should take this to Superior Court."

"It's our job to make law," Mirri asserted. "All the courts do is to interpret it. The public expects this man to be paid for the trouble he has gone through."

He said he believed that leaving it to the judge to decide would be "a way of saving no."

Police Chief Sal Rosano reviewed the case, which began when he fired Fazackerley on Jan. 5.
